“ Andrew was the first friend I remember having. I recall jumping on the trampoline with him and some of his cousins until it literally broke under us. After we got up, he made sure everyone was okay. He was just that kinda guy. I'll always remember making "dirt soup" (we were 5 years old!) and mud pies together. I'll remember playing with his pets with him and running around our yards. We would swim in our pool and try to play Marco polo. We would splash and laugh and accuse each other of cheating, as kids do. As we got older we did become more acquaintances than friends but he always offered a friendly hello. He will be missed

“ I work at B+L with Melissa and want to express that I am thinking of the family and Andrew. I am looking at his photo and the other photos on line and the joy and fun shines through. We are all blessed by the people around us and I am quite sure that Andrew has given you many memories to hold him tight and cherish his life.

Sincerely,

Larry Pinkston

“ Andrew was the first of my husband's friends I met when moving to StL. He helped us look for an apartment, he was the best man in our wedding, came to our middle boys baby shower, and he was a good friend to my husband. My deepest condolences for your loss and prayers are with family and friends as they grieve, that they find peace through the coming days.

“ Andrew was always that kid that would annoy Melissa, his sister, and me whenever I would come over to spend the night. I mean after all he was “the little brother” to her and he might as well have been mine too. Andrew was an awesome person and he will be missed by all who knew him. Love and hugs to y’all!!!

“ I met Andrew five years ago through our passion for glorious facial hair. That journey took us from monthly BAMSTL club meetings to road tripping down to Austin to compete in the 2017 World Beard and Mustache Championships in Austin, TX, raising money for numerous charities along the way. What a long strange journey it’s been. I’m glad to have know you Andrew. May you Rest In Peace Brother.

“ Monkey has been friends with my daughter, Amanda (aka: Babs) for many many years. He helped us move into our home over 10 years ago. He was always very respectful to me and I really enjoyed his visits and hearing stories about him over the years.

He actually saved my daughter's life, one time...true story...I would have killed her myself, as that was how frustrated I was with her!!!! lol

Amanda has ALWAYS, and I seriously mean, ALWAYS had an issue with keys. More specifically, she was always losing and misplacing keys...any and all keys...it didn't matter! She would put them away for "safe-keeping", and they would never be seen again!

Not long, after moving into our home, evidently she forgot her keys and had no way to get inside the house. Monkey was with her. She knew the only window that was not locked was her bedroom window, in the back of the house, above the basement (2 stories from the ground).

I'm not sure who came up with the idea, but the two of them moved all of our metal patio furniture, down a fairly steep hill, to the spot directly below her window. They stacked it like a Jenga game. The story I've been told is that Monkey climbed the patio furniture tower, opened the unlocked window, climbed inside, and unlocked the door so Amanda could get inside.

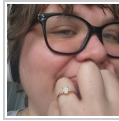

Then, they moved the furniture back up the hill and into their respective places. I had no idea...FOR OVER 10 YEARS! Amanda shared this story with me just recently. Thank God, I didn't know this until now! I really don't think my heart could have withstood the thought of him falling from their hand-built tower of furniture! lol

He and I will be having a chat when I see him again...trust me! lol

I love you, Monkey!

*just to clear one thing up, my baby sister ratted me out about what happened not too long ago claiming she thought mom knew by now which was followed by an angry phone call from you

But you still didn't tell me about it until recently...just to let you know, I'm still not happy about it! However, I can laugh about it now...10 YEARS LATER!!!!!!

“ Andrew was a hell of a guy. One of the best friends my brother and I had. This was one of my favorite memories. We gathered for my brother's birthday and Dave and Buster's before COVID ever hit.

Hearing he had passed broke my heart. I wanted him to recover so badly. My thoughts and prayers are with his parents, the rest of his family, and friends in this difficult time.

Rest in Peace Andrew. I'm so sorry we never had another chance to hang out. I always thought we'd have more time.
