Charlotte Ann Greenbury July 11, 1933 - November 13, 2024

Charlotte Ann Greenbury, a luminary of love, creativity, and community, passed away peacefully surrounded by the beauty she cherished in St. Louis, Missouri. Born into a world she would transform with her warmth and talent; Charlotte's life was a masterpiece of generosity and zest. An artist at heart, Charlotte's palette was not limited to canvas; her life itself was her greatest artwork. She painted her days with the colors of friendship, compassion, and an unyielding zest for life. Her artistic flair shone through her work as a graphic artist and the owner of CG Studios, where she nurtured budding artists and shared her profound love for painting.

Charlotte's canvas extended into the community where she was a beacon of leadership and service. As President of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA), she inspired countless women to pursue their professional dreams with grace and determination. Her role as a Girl Scout Leader also allowed her to instill values of nature, community, and self-reliance in the younger generation.

Her vivacious spirit was not confined to her professional life. Charlotte embraced every opportunity for joy, evident in her prowess as a semi-pro bowler and her magnetic presence on the runway. Her love for animals, especially horses, was well-known, and her garden was a testament to her belief in nurturing growth and beauty.

Charlotte's generosity knew no bounds; she was the soul of every gathering, her laughter a melody that invited all to join in the dance of life. Her infectious enthusiasm for life meant that she never turned down an invitation, bringing joy to any event she graced.

She is survived by her sons, David and Dale Greenbury, her daughter Debbie Miller, and her cherished grandchildren Jessica, Ben, Amelia, Morgan, and Katherine Greenbury, and Kirsten Wibbenmeyer. Her siblings, Juanita Marie Abell and Ray Abell, predeceased her, but their memories lived on through Charlotte's stories and her continued love for family.

Charlotte's life was a vivid tapestry, woven with threads of passion, creativity, and love. Her legacy will continue to inspire, comfort, and guide those who knew her, and her spirit will forever bloom in the gardens of memory and in the hearts of all who were fortunate enough to know her.
