“ I grew up in the same neighborhood that Clarence raised his children. He used to drive an orange and black Ford pick up. I think it was 4 wheel drive and set up really high. He used to drive by on our dusty, pot holed road by our house, and he would always smile and wave. He would be holding his beloved poodle FiFi. She had her little head hanging out the window. That memory is forever etched in my mind. Little did I know then I would grow up to marry his son and I would be so proud to call this wonderful man my father-in-law. He also came to my rescue when I accidentally locked my infant daughter in the car at my Mom's house. Here he came with a coat hanger and unlocked my door. He was a wonderful caring man with a beautiful smile. I don't think he ever met a stranger. He definitely touched my life and I will truly miss him.
