“ Back in the 1970s, I ran across Frank in Cedar Rapids, IA, and he was getting ready to play banjo at a gig in Rock Island, IL. We spent a wild weekend together and I never forgot it - LOL. At that time, my name was Steven Page.

I only knew Frank from occasional jamming at Schlafly's, but what a fine singer/musician, but even more importantly a sweet and modest person whose integrity you could sense immediately. Condolences to his family.

“ Frankie was a person loved by so many people. Always had a smile for everyone. My daughter Kim was in their wedding. He used to come by my house if he was doing little odd jobs and wanted help. He would pick up my son Chris. I always knew Chris was in good hands with Frankie, a good mentor for my son. And when my youngest daughter moved to Ballwin, he contacted Danielle through face book asking when she moved there. She asked how he knew. He replied: " I delivered your mail today." Frankie was just an all around good guy, a man of faith. He will be missed. Prayers for the family.

“ Condolences to all his family. Our family first knew Frank through Cub Scouts and then Boy Scouts as the kids grew older. He was always quiet spoken and thoughtful. My oldest son attend a class he led at the local church for the God and Family Badge for Boy Scouts. My family found a new appreciation for him during this time as he led the class with patience and knowledge, trying to give the young men a deeper understanding of God. His faith in Jesus has him in a better place than this world!

“ Frank is perfect now and singing with the Angels. He was one of my great musical friends. There are angels that play guitar -- and Frank will be one of them. Could somebody let me know when/where the wake will be? We have some folks from St. Louis that want to honor him with a final jam.

“ I was so focused on my grief, i neglected to mention that my children loved him truly too. They grew up with Frank being around. Usually when Mom and Dads have company, the kids go to their rooms. When Frank came over they came out.

“ I met Frank through my ex husband. We became friends in our own right and I loved him like a brother/ father. When he was local, he'd pop in and we'd trade cornball jokes. The antics of 'Uncle Cephas' made me hold my sides and tears of laughter rolled too many times to count. Any time I needed help, he would come. My Mother and brothers loved him dearly too. My brother worked with him on jobs and came home one day, stunned. Frank was painting and broke out in song. He couldn't believe those big, rich tones came out of that little guy. He told Frank that too and Frank just chuckled and kept on singing. The world has lost the biggest heart set in one of the best men I've ever known. Our family feels his loss deeply.

“ I once knew a not especially educated man who always spoke above his formal schooling especially when conversing about Holy Scripture, when speaking of God and faith, and Jesus Christ. When complimented as to his knowledge of the Bible, he would often thank the listener and say, “Well, I love the Lord and he makes it easy. But keep in mind, there are those who don’t truly know Jesus who can do the same.” Then he would say, “So be careful. Satan can quote scripture better than anyone.”

To listen to this man in his unrefined, genuine, voice as he sang songs of praise towards Heaven above you were again assured that this man had Jesus dwelling in his heart. This man was not perfect. I knew him for several decades and I knew of his history and of his struggles. But throughout these times the Lord was never far away. And as all of us must remember to do, no matter the circumstances burdening our lives, this man never strayed far from his friend Jesus Christ. This man knew that, only with a humble heart, Jesus would welcome him back into the fold.

We can all enrich our time remaining here on Earth if perhaps we endeavor to live our lives more like this man. His everyday mannerisms, his commitment to and love for his family as well as complete strangers, his sense of charity and community service, and his gift of offering prayer, and witnessing for the Lord in song, were unique and incomparable. And on that note, I was the last mortal to blend my voice and soul together with his when we sang, what now seems prophetic, the song, “When Jesus Beckons Me Home.” With love for this man, and another small void in my heart, I will tell you now his name. FRANK FLOWERS.
