“ R.I.P. John Foote/Grandpa! Thanks for all the help over the years, for adopting us as family, for standing by our sides when no one else would, for the lessons in money management and investing, for the lessons in how to fix a house, the career advice, the conversations on science, space, life & love, the conversations on how to be a good & kind human being while enjoying the hell out of life. Most of all when the world is at such a volatile state thanks for being who you are and showing me that there is a lot of good left in humanity and you should never give up. I know you are smiling & chuckling up there probably telling God that he can get higher efficiency windows on the house while discussing space and time. Here is to celebrating your life and the impact you had! You will be missed but know that you left a huge legacy and had an amazing impact.

“ I admired Mr. Foote's dedication to Crestwood, even after his term as alderman expired. Even in illness, he was eager to pass on his thoughts about what was best for his city.

“ Carol and Family, I'm so sorry to hear of John's passing and sorry that I was not able to attend the service (I'm currently in Antarctica with ANSMET). John was a good friend and such an important part of my grad student days at Wash U. My thoughts are with you.

“ Dear Members of the family of Mr. John Foote, I knew John very well during his tenure at the McDonnell Center for the Space Sciences, working under the direction of Professor Robert M. Walker. He was kind, warm, and hospitable; he had invited me to his home for a barbecue party, where he tirelessly was cooking at the grill for a large group of guests. I know that all of you who have been associated with him very closely fell the loss very intensely. Only time has the alchemy to convert this sorrow into fond memories. With my deepest condolences and the warmest regards, Ramanath Cowsik Professor Ramanath Cowsik

“ I will for ever be grateful to John for his friendly help and advice when I first arrived at Wash. U. having never lived in the States before. He seemed to enjoy explaining the strange ways things were done to us foreigners - banks, credit cards, apartments, politics and of course FOOTBALL. I never knew there were so many ways to hurt an opponent (legally and illegally). He was also very patient with my first stumbling attempts to understand the black art of running the 3f ion probe. I will miss him.

“ Carol and Family. We are so sorry to hear of the passing of John. We were one of the families Ernst alluded to. We will always remember and appreciate the kindnesses, home BBQs, cocktails, spare ribs (Trotters) and lasting friendship he and you extended to us and many other postdoc families. To me, John was the quintessential large American both in stature and in heart. He was always so interested in everyone's story and about the countries they came from. It's such a shame he never made it to Australia and allowed us to reciprocate his hospitality. With our love Meredith, Trevor (Ireland) & Lloyd (Ashton)

“ There are many happy memories from the years John and I worked together in the Physics Department at Washington University. He has been the most meticulous and reliable person who has ever worked in the Laboratory for the Space Sciences. His contributions solved many technical problems, for example in helping to design an experiment that orbited Earth for several years. Even when working on boring tasks he never tired but drove for perfection. He also fulfilled the role of a “psychiatrist” for our group. Many students and collaborators talked to him about their problems and he always listened patiently. Another thing I really appreciated was that he took care of visiting scientists, some of whom came from far-away places. He helped them with their local problems and showed them around St. Louis. Many remarked that his help made their visits easier and more enjoyable. John will live forever in our memories.
