John was a loving family man. His grandchildren were the light of his life. Pulling out his guitar and playing real country music made everyone smile. He was a true cowboy and could do anything he set his mind to. From fixing fence to training horses and even woodworking he was good at it all. His Banana Pudding was the best around and he loved showing off his skills. When he had the chance, you could find him fishing, maybe not catching, but definitely enjoying himself and the people around. Norma was his best friend and love of his life. She led him to find God and his faith has grown ever since. Those he touched know he's watching from up above. He will be fondly remembered and dearly missed by all who knew and loved him.
