“ Its Easter day Kyle and I keep thinking about the time we took all those eggs over and hide for the kids in the middle of the night. It was my idea and even though you said I was crazy wild for thinking about doing this you too where wild enough to join me. Lol what a fun time we shared ill never forget us eating jellybeans for days and play fighting for the last few we found on the floor. Going up with you was a pleaser Kyle

“ Kyle Parker, my love, I meet Kyle when I was 14 years old he was quirky back then but I could always feel something special. When I turned 15 I had fallen in love with him. He was my first boyfriend and I'm proud to say we grew up together. Some of my fondest memories include Kyle since the age of 14 thru my early 20s we were inseparable. And even though many only saw a young couple and just puppy love, we shared something very special to me. I loved Kyle and his family and friends as my own since I was a runaway child I considered Bill and Sharon live savers. They accepted me as I was and treated me with open arms and care. They made sure I was fed, had food, had clothes, helped me get my diploma which I'm sure wasn't there funnest memories. I'll never forget my first Christmas with the Parkers, as a runaway from a poor and abusive home I could never imagine what a normal Christmas would look and feel like. That year Christmas came and I woke to many new gifts and traditions I have kept and passed down to my own family. I'm still in shock that now only I hold these precious and intimate memories. The man I shared these with is gone and now those same intimate memories will forever be my treasures as will the special love I'll always have for Kyle.
