“ I met Patrick with Chuck. Although a little tired after a treatment Patrick was very nice as his brother was happy to introduce one of his friends to his brother he loves.

“ Pat, I just wanted to thank you for all of the advice and wisdom you've shared with me over the past ten years. Working with you has been an extra special treat for me. When we realized that you went to school with my parents, work just became fun because I got to share memories and jokes with you that I couldn't share with anyone else. You were just the guy here that brought us all together whenever you could. You always invited us to so many things and you loved my kids when they came in. You asked about them any chance you got. I miss you reading me your bacon calendar message of the day. I am thankful that your pain is gone but I miss you! I hope you are on the best beach somewhere. Rest easy my friend.

“ Pat, working with you these past years was fun. You knew how to make us laugh. You were a selfless person, helping me and giving advice with what my mom was going through even though you were going through what you were going through. I will never forget that! Rest easy brother.

“ June 3rd 2017 our wedding day. Just before we head down the aisle (in our yard) the best man had somehow dislodged the diamond out of Lisa's ring that he was holding. As the frantic searching started so did the music telling us to get to the gazebo. Lost in the gravel all hope was about lost. This Diamond was left to Lisa when her father passed and I had it put into her wedding ring so to say this was devastating is an understatement. We decided it was best to not mention this to Lisa until.... Well as long as we could put it off that day. As the ceremony continued though Tall Pat would not give up and he eventually found the diamond before the ceremony was over in time to return it before Lisa ever knew it was gone. Little did we know that was only the first amazing thing Tall Pat was going to accomplish that day. As the day went on and temperatures were soaring, Pat unloaded 2 coolers from his truck stocked full of Ted Drews ice cream cups in multiple flavors because Pat always wanted everyone to have what they liked. Good lord I love that man. This only one of so many stories I have about how Pat was such a positive impact on my family. We love you so much TP rest in peace and enjoy your paradise my freind.
