“ We had so many. But I have to say the funniest memory I ever had and trust me this was definitely over a little to much wine was when I was 22 and I wanted my belly button pierced. 🤪 Well Sandy was the woman that could come up with a way no matter where you were. She was so admitte on how well she could pierce my belly button right there on the kitchen table. Well with a bottle of wine why not .. ha ha,, she layed me out on the kitchen table and peirced my belly button with a potato. Lord the stuff we did. It didn't work by the way,, but we sure had a great time with trying to and a memory that I will always cherish. We will miss you

My mom was also my best friend. We were always there for each other no matter what. I remember she used to keep me home from school when she needed to paint the town house. She said it had to be done before my dad got home from work.lol
